This is where you'll find inspiration with something additional to fresh colours to help you to get creative with your ideas of how to make multiple fabulous-modern-business-woman combinations.

Classic clothing tends to be more severe in its rules and does not allow for the playing with many colours or fine details. Don't allow yourself to get caught up in brand names, as alluring as they may be, and find yourself living outside of your means. You don't need designer labels to dress well; it's about how your outfit is put together more so than which brand you're wearing. Don't be a walking billboard for a name brand; be original, wear what fits you well and makes you connect with your fabulous self.

Classic, modern pants and jackets are staples. With jackets you're able to experiment with different cuts for a more modern look and the right fit and cut of pant lends glamour and elegance to your movement.

Shoes are also important, your heels should be low and not in strong colours (try and keep to neutral tones) and pull together various looks. Knee-length skirts with a blouse tucked in are also go-to choices, but mind your hemlines; the general rule is to stand at attention, allowing for your hemline to fall below your fingertips.
